FATHER TIME FORCES GANS TO QUIT RING

Two More Fights Before He Retires Because of Age, Says Champion.

DE GANS, the champion lightweight of the world, is surely going to retire from the ring in September. He made this announcement in San Francisco last night, and stated that he really meant it this time. After his forty-five-round fight with Battling Nelson on July 4 at Colma, Cal., Gans will issue a challenge to fight the winner of the Packey McFarland-Freddie Welsh battle for the title on Labor Day. If the victor declines to take him on, then he will quit the game former of the Packey McFarland-Freddie Welsh battle for the title on Labor Day. BOXING STAG TO-NIGHT.

The Olympic A. C., of Harlem, will hole its regular weekly stag to-night. In the main bout the principals will be Jeff Doherty, of New Haven, Conn., and "Fighting Dick Nelson," of this city. It should be one of the best fights of the year, as both men are noted for their gameness, and besides are aggressive. Leach Cross will box an exhibition four-round bout with Frankle Howe. Four other bouts will also be decided.
